

Program Curriculum Map 2012-13

Program: PHILOSOPHY – B.A.
Program Student Learning Goals Successful graduates from this program will be able to.....	Students should know:	Students should be able to demonstrate:	Students should be able to apply:	Students should be able to evaluate:	*Foundation Course
	- The fields into which philosophy is divided and the major issues within each field - The basic tenets of major figures in ancient, modern and contemporary philosophy - The basic tenets of historically significant moral theories	- An ability to interpret philosophical texts written in the analytic tradition - An ability to interpret philosophical arguments - An ability to interpret explanations, including moral and causal explanations - An ability to avoid fallacies, confirmation bias, and the uncritical acceptance of ideas, including one's own ideas	- Metaphysical concepts, such as logical possibility and truth, and epistemological concepts, such as epistemic justification and evidence, to philosophical issues - Important moral concepts, such as moral justification and consent, to philosophical issues - Moral theories to ethical issues	- An argument by assessing the truth of the premises and the support they provide for the conclusion - Explanations, including moral and causal explanations
PHI 101		I /R		I/R
PHI 205	I/R	R	R	R
PHI 206	I/R	R	R	R
PHI 315			I/R
PHI 375		R		R
PHI 107 or 108		I /R	I/R	R
PHI ELECTIVES	R/M	R/M	R/M	R/M
HPS 126 or 127	R			I/R
HISTORY COURSE					*
QUANTITATIVE COURSE					*
PHI 225 or 226
Curriculum Map Key	Place a letter in the appropriate box where the program goal is Introduced, Reinforced, and/or Mastered. I = Introduced; program student learning goal is introduced R = Reinforced; provide practice opportunities for the program student learning goal M = Mastered; demonstrated mastery of the program student learning goal. Some courses may have two letters (I/R or R/M) or all three (I/R/M) *Foundation Course A course that provides base skills needed to be successful in the program. Programs may not require or have foundation courses; it will vary from program to program.				