In-Text Citations

The best way to generate in-text citations is with the RefWorks add-on for Google Docs. From the RefWorks menu, go to More and select Tools.

Under “Cite in Google Docs,” click “Get the Add-on.” Install the extension, then go to Google Docs from your email and start typing.

When it’s time to cite a source, go to “Add-ons” and choose ProQuest RefWorks > Manage Citations.

Hover over a reference and click “Cite This.” RefWorks will create an in-text citation and start a bibliography.

Exporting citations from the library catalog

While viewing a record, click the arrow icon in the upper right corner. Choose “Cite record.”

Export a citation:
- Cite with EndNote
- Cite with RefWorks

From the menu that pops up, choose “Cite with RefWorks.” You may need to allow pop-ups on your browser.

Exporting citations from articles in the library databases

While viewing an article, click on “Export.” This will look different in various databases. From the Export Manager that pops up, choose “Direct Export to RefWorks.”

Important:
You are responsible for verifying the accuracy of your citations. Consult the Library Citation Style guides on the library website for information on accurate citations.

Citations are computer generated and will often need some editing to clean them up. If one of your citations is incorrect, select it in the Workspace and click the pencil in the upper right corner to edit.

Creating a Reference List

References that you have exported will appear in your Workspace. From here you can turn your sources into a reference list.

Click the quotation mark icon and choose “Create Bibliography.”

Your citations will be generated and available to copy and paste into your document.
