The Center for Career and Professional Development

Internships are an important part of students' professional development, offering valuable work experience, insight to possible careers, and networking opportunities. If considering an internship, it is important for students to consult with their faculty advisor and/or academic internship coordinator, as some academic programs require internships or may offer academic credit upon completion of non-required internships. The Center for Career and Professional Development assists students with researching internship opportunities through a variety of online databases and application support is available.
