What is your outlook on the 2010 season?
 I think that we are a team of extremely talented players. We will show all the doubters that we will bounce back and be a great team in 2010. I think that every player now is making the right choices during the off season by getting into the gym and training hard everyday. I think with the new freshmen class coming in it will make our team deeper and will give us more options in every position. This season is going to be great, and I'm excited for what our team can accomplish.

What are your thoughts on the world cup?
 I wish the best for the United States, but I think that either Spain or Argentina will most likely win the cup. I think Spain is a fantastic club and has a lot of talented players, most of which play together in the La Liga. On the other hand I have a gut feeling that Argentina led by Messi will have a great chance at capturing their third title. Messi has been excellent in the champions league and in the La Liga and will only continue his great form through the summer.

Giving Back To The Local Community
